1. Definition of the field of habilitation and inauguration proceedings

Name of the field of habilitation and inauguration proceedings	Public Health
Content	Public Health is a multidisciplinary science field concerned with the health of population and ways to prevent diseases, prolong life, and to strengthen the health through the organized efforts of society. Public Health is a scientific field standing on the pillars of biomedical and natural sciences, such as hygiene (environmental hygiene, food hygiene, child and youth hygiene, health protection against radiation, health at work), epidemiology (methods in epidemiology, epidemiology of communicable and non-communicable diseases), microbiology, health risk assessment, behavioural sciences (ethics in public health, health psychology, sociology of health, health promotion and health education), biostatistics and informatics, public health management and policy, and community medicine focused on specific health care for selected vulnerable population groups. Currently, attention is being paid to the prevention of health damage, prolonging life and increasing the quality of life, which is impacted significantly by health, therefore the requirements for the education of public health professionals at the level of university education, including postgraduate lifelong education, are increasing. Public Health includes areas of interest related to determinants of health, primary, secondary and tertiary prevention of diseases, promotion and protection of health, organization of the health system and provision of health care.
